Happenings in and Around Frank

B. B. Hayt, of Lethbridge, was in town on Tuesday.

J. J. McInyre, of Coleman, was a visitor in town on Tuesday.

Colin McGillivray and L. W. Moorhead, were down from Lillo on Tuesday.

We are pleased to notice that Mr. A. V. Lang has returned from his eastern trip with renewed vigor.

We are also glad to learn that Mrs. W. McGowan has quite recovered from her recent attack of la grippe.

Mr. J. W. Gresham is in no way disheartened at the result of the recent election. He comes up smiling every time.

C. M. O'Brien, M. P., gave an address on "His Experience in the Law Factory at Edmonton," in the Miners' hall, on Sunday evening last.

A dance was given in the Miners' hall on Wednesday night to celebrate the anniversary of Robert Burns. Quite a number were down from Coleman and Blaimore.

Dominic Marsdall was brought up at the court on Saturday before T. S. Belcher, J. P. and J. W. Gresham, J. P. and charged with stealing a lady's coat from a house in the red light district. He was found guilty and sent down for a month.

There was quite a large docket at the police court on Monday morning and his worship, J. W. Gresham, had quite a busy time. John Anderson, pit boss at Bellevue, for being drunk and disorderly at Bellevue on Saturday night was mulcted in the sum of $10 and costs, and for damaging property at the same place, had to pay another $5 and costs and $6 damages. John Marshall, Mike Gilday, John Hutchky, all of Bellevue were charged with being drunk and disorderly at the same time and place and had to pay fines ranging from $5 and costs to $10 and costs.

Quite a number of the electors in the Frank school district are "kicking" at the manner in which the recent election was carried out. According to the Village Ordinance eight days must transpire between the posting of notices and the annual meeting. Moreover, there must be no less than five notices posted in conspicuous places convening the meeting of electors. This, they claim, did not take place and thus they were debarred from having a voice of note in the election of the school trustees, and in a matter of so much importance every elector should have the opportunity of casting his vote.

January Athletic World

The January number of THE ATHLETIC WORLD, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario, just issued, not only maintains but further develops the national sports policy laid down on the inception of this highly creditable monthly. The seasonable sports treated, the excellent articles pertaining to the important phases of outdoor pastimes and the official information given tell how great a want in the sports life of Canada is being filled by THE ATHLETIC WORLD. Its pages are rich in illustrations and timely discussions, making it one of the best yet issued.

The mercury dropped to 26 below Wednesday night.

Happenings in and Around Bellevue

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Carter are among the latest to make Bellevue their home town.

We received last Friday's Coleman Miner on time on Tuesday. "No stop-press news" the reason.

Work has not yet been resumed at the mine until it is reported free from other than ordinary danger.

An old timer of Bellevue, and a new comer to a more western town, intend to join hands ere the roses bloom again.

A large number of our young folks attended the "Bobby Burns" celebration at Frank on Wednesday night and voted the affair most enjoyable.

William James of the Nail Factory, has been visiting Frank and Coleman this week considering the establishment of an aeronautical instrumental bureau.

A magnificent meteor illuminated the eastern heavens at 11.13 o'clock on Saturday night. It was witnessed by a large number of hockeyites while returning from Coleman.

A derigible airship was seen hovering over the Turtle Mountain peak on Sunday morning and later turned south. It is thought to have been Dr. Cook eloping with a bland young widow of Lethbridge. Watch for the dear-relict.

Miss Kelly Leaves

Bellevue lost one of its most popular lady residents, on Tuesday when Nurse Kelly left for Pincher Creek, where she intends staying for a few weeks before resuming her work in another field. The "Shannon Club," of which Miss Kelly was secretary gave a farewell party on Monday evening. A very enjoyable time was spent, and a tasty supper was served at 11 p.m. to which full justice was done. The president expressed the regret that the club felt at the loss they were about to sustain. Miss Kelly made a suitable response. "Nurse" was a general favorite in town and her cheery presence and bright smile will be greatly missed.

Died from Exposure

Fernie, B. C., Jan. 25.—John Hunter, familiarly known as "Johnnie" Hunter, by almost every traveller who has visited Fernie during the past ten years through his capacity as porter for the leading hotels of the town, died here Tuesday afternoon at the Fernie hospital from exposure.

He had been interdicted and could not obtain liquor directly, and it is supposed that some one through kindness or some other motive, secured the liquor for him last Friday night and the next morning he was found in an unconscious condition near the school house, and taken to the hospital, where he died. An inquest is to be held and it may develop the facts as to how Johnnie got the forbidden poison which caused his untimely end. Mr. Hunter was of Scotch origin and had been a resident of Fernie since its beginning.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the hardest to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Keep Baby's Skin Clear

Mothers, do you realize the importance of caring for baby's tender, easily irritated skin? Neglect or unsuitable methods may give rise to simple rashes or tiny sores. Torturing, disfiguring humors follow and threaten to become permanent. Not only is Cuticura Soap the purest and sweetest for baby's bath but, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it affords the speediest and most economical method of clearing baby's skin and scalp of eczemas, rashes, itchings and irritations, and of establishing a permanent condition of skin and hair-health.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists everywhere. Fuller Drug & Chem. Corp., New York, Boston, Mass., and the Cuticura Book on the care of skin and scalp.

Q CHILD CULTURE.

It is Expensive, But the Most Fascinating Hobby in the World.

The announcement that King George is increasing his collection of orchids at Sandringham will, doubtless, give fillip to this particular branch of horticulture, and increase the popularity which it already enjoys. In spite of many new rivals, the orchid in recent years has held its ground. Its position is unique, for no other flower has evoked such a costly expenditure for travelers, who have ransacked out-of-the-way regions for new specimens. The prices realized in the saleroom are often astounding to those outside the circle of orchidists.

One important element in the development is the fact that the culture of orchids is not now confined to the wealthy enthusiast; their cultivation has been taken up by amateurs, who are able to devote a small greenhouse to a modest collection at a low cost. At the present time it is possible to secure plants for a few shillings, which some years ago would have cost as many pounds.

It generally is recognized that orchids can be grown as easily as other flowers; the difficulties which were once the bane of the amateur collector have been practically exaggerated. Years ago, owing to the lack of proper knowledge, mistakes were made in their treatment; but the accumulated experience of many of the leading orchidists is now at the disposal of the amateur in the possession of simple methods that the merest tyro can soon attain efficiency.

Orchid-growing is always found an indescribably fascinating hobby. There is such a wide range of forms, and endless possibilities as regards color surprises. Moreover, there is the added attraction that one may find amongst his collection a rare species worth a big sum, if offered at the auction market in Chelsea. The fantastic shapes afford endless enchantment to the close observer. In the curious forms one sees revealed instances of mimicry, which are not confined to this section of floral life. Several of the British species, such as the Spider orchid, form of animal life are delineated in the frog, the Monkey, the lizard orchid, and others. In the exotic section there are also some remarkable shapes, including Peristeria, the flowers of which resemble a dove about to alight.

The famous Butterfly orchid (Oncidium papilio) is included in many collections, notably in the costly one belonging to the Duke of Devonshire at Chatsworth. The formation of a butterfly is closely followed, the resemblance being very striking. In Cynochus the ventricles are delicate and curved column with the winged petals, resemble a swan. Another extraordinary species is the Fox orchid (Mecynopus), which has a weird and uncanny appearance. There is a romance, too, to orchid culture which lends an added interest to the hobby. The amateur can travel the sales, where are regularly held in Chelsea, and purchase a plant for a few shillings. This may eventually be found to be a scarce species, bringing the fortunate possessor several hundred pounds.

There are many instances of these auction prices known to the regular habitués of the saleroom. On one occasion a collector in search of a rare species in their native habitat found a rare specimen, for which a reward of £100 was offered by an English firm. The late Duke of Devonshire once paid $341 for a specimen which he valued at a dollar in the island of Luzon.

A Brilliant Officer.

Col. H. C. Surtees, C.B., M.V.O., the new Unionist candidate for Gateshead, joined the army thirty-four years ago and after a year in the 40th Royal Berkshires, transferred to the Coldstream Guards, and was second in command of the 1st Battalion in the Boer War. He commanded Turkish Mounted Infantry in the Nile expedition of 1900, and the 3rd Cavalry Corps of the Egyptian army on the Sudan frontier, 1898-99. Col. Surtees is a Staff College graduate and an interpreter in the Turkish language. He has been Military Attaché at Constantinople, and has given the Royal Victorian Order when the late King Edward visited Greece in 1906.

Never Loses His Politeness.

General Sir H. C. O. Plumer, who is stated to be the fortunate officer selected to succeed Sir Horatio Smith-Dorrien next year in the Aldershot command, came out of the South African war with a brilliant record, and since then has held both important administrative and executive appointments. His appearance does not suggest the man of war. He dresses with the scrupulous care of a dandy, and is seldom seen without his eyeglass. Extreme politeness characterizes his speech, even in the heat of action.

ACHES, PAINS AND RHEUMATISM?

Zam-Buk Will Give You Ease.

Have you had a bad attack of "general aching"? You know the feeling. Limbs ache, muscles seem to have become tired out, your back aches, now and again a twinge of rheumatism strikes you here and there. Your chest feels tight, there is a pain between your shoulders, and altogether you need toning up.

Cold is responsible for this condition, and a vigorous application of Zam-Buk will put you right. Take a hot bath, if possible, and then rub your chest and the aching limbs well with Zam-Buk.

Mrs. B. Gorrie, 76 Berkeley St., Toronto, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Zam-Buk. A few weeks ago I was suffering from a bad cold, which had settled in my throat, chest and limbs. I tried all kinds of remedies, new and old, and found very little relief until I used Zam-Buk. On applying this to my throat and chest I found such ease and relief that I determined to use only Zam-Buk. I also rubbed it on my limbs where I had the rheumatic pains. In three days from the time I first began applying Zam-Buk I was free from the cold in my throat and chest, and also the rheumatism in my limbs. Zam-Buk will also give a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, scalp sores, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, baby eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell it 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of 50c. price. Avoid harmful imitations and substitutes."

A Testimonial

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria

Admiring Native—"You've got to hand it to that boy Daniel. Before they chucked him in the den, he made up as a comic supplement kid, and now, by Durieux, the lions are too scared to tackle him!"—Puck.

While more prevalent in winter, when sudden changes in the weather try the strongest constitutions, colds and coughs and ailments of the throat may come in any season. At the first sign of derangement of the voice, use Minard's Liniment. Instant relief will be experienced, and use of the medicine until the cold is cured will protect the lungs from attack. For anyone with throat or chest weakness it cannot be surpassed.

Mothers-in-Law in Bethlehem

Many of the people in Bethlehem migrate, for they have no fear of travel and make excellent colonists. It is no secret to come upon men of Bethlehem in eastern Africa and even in Haiti. Now, for the first time, I tell you the remarkable headstrong for which the married women of Bethlehem are famous. They are large and shrewd, and control the half of the town that the foundation is a free, stiffened and covered with cotton. Chains of silver, on which a string of beads, or a great white veil made of cotton baton, the finishing touch. Strongly built and active, the matrons of Bethlehem look very imposing as they go about their affairs, and I should scarcely think they live in great subjection to their husbands. That they make charming mother-in-laws I can well believe. There is a proverb in Palestine, "Were the mother-in-law to love the daughter-in-law, dew would go into paradise."—Robert Hichens, in Century.

A New Kind of Pudding

Lord Rosbery has the reputation of being a delightful host, and also of having wonderful tact. This latter gift was certainly displayed on one occasion when he was entertaining a large number of guests amongst whom was a farmer, who, tasting receding for the first time, came to the conclusion that there had been some mistake in the kitchen, and wishing to save the other guests from a like experience, whispered to his host that by some accident the pudding had got frozen. Lord Rosbery listened without a smile, and thanked his informant; then, calling an attendant, and turning with a relieved face to the farmer, saying: "It's all right, they tell me that it is a new kind of pudding, and is frozen on purpose."

The Lily Grows From the Mire

O star on the breast of the river! O marvel of bloom and grace, Did you fall down from heaven, Or of the sweetest place? You are white as the thoughts of an angel, My pure and radiant one!

Yes, I tell not out of heaven! Now give me my sanity white! It slowly grew from the blackness, Down in the dreary night, From the ooze of the silent river, I won my glory and grace; White souls fall not, O my poet, They rise to the sweetest place! Author Unknown.

How to Eat Waffles

The Republican nominee for governor of Ohio is very fond of waffles. I have a regular formula for eating waffles," said Mr. Harding to a friend, "and I recommend it to every one. You eat the first fourteen waffles without syrup, but with lots of butter. Then you put syrup on the next nine, and the last half dozen you eat just simply swimming in syrup. Eaten that way waffles never hurt anybody."

"Thank you, sir," said the seedy-looking individual who had just received a hopper from a benevolent old gentleman. "I've been out of the next nine, and the last half dozen you eat just simply swimming in syrup. Eaten that way waffles never hurt anybody."

"Next year!" echoed the old gentleman. "Why, what is your occupation?"

To tell the truth, sir," replied the seedy one, "I'm a coronation programme seller."

A child's party, sir, shirdu of mch of one of my troubles."

Pain Flees Before It.—There is more virtue in a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil as a subduer of pain than in gallons of other medicine. The people know this and there are thousands throughout the country who have found relief from their years of pain has familiarized the people with it, and made it a household word throughout the western world.

"Remove the sting of a wasp or bee with a watch key, pressing the place with it; then rub the sting with a clean white cloth, and the pain is a damp blue bag."—Daily Mirror.

Press gently, dry, dust with boracic powder, and return it to the bee (or wasp).—Punch.

Pneumonia and Constipation are always preceded by an ordinary cold. Hamlin's Wizard Oil rubbed into the chest draws out the inflammation, breaks up the cold and prevents all serious trouble.

A gentleman who no longer was young, and who never was handsome, said to a child in the presence of her parents—"Well, my dear, what do you think of me?" The little one made no reply, and the gentleman continued—"Well, you don't tell me. Why won't you?" Two fat little hands tucked the corners of a pinafore into her mouth, as she said archly, in a timid whisper—"Cause I don't want to be whipped!"

Minard's Liniment Cure Diphtheria

Pluck "Don't spend no money for gas," he told the dentist. "Yank it out if it don't hurt."

"You are plucky," said the dentist. "Let me see the tooth."

Tommy has been making a study of dentistry. When his sister was opening the door to leave the nursery he pulled her back by the hair and elbowed her out of the way. "Don't you know, you ignorant little thing," he said indignantly, "that this is a gentleman's place to open the door for a lady!"

A HOUSEHOLD REMEDY

Concrete Sidewalks are Safe, Sightly and Everlasting

LUMBER used in damp places and on wet ground—as, for instance, in walks—has a very short life. It requires almost constant repairing and, in a few years, needs replacing. Concrete, on the other hand, improves with age, and the very dampness which destroys lumber calls out the best qualities of the cement by making it harder and harder—until neither time nor traffic can affect it. The best of wooden walks keep getting out of repair, and are a continual menace to life and limb. They are also a frequent source of expensive doctor bills and lost time. Then again, they are likely to eat up the original cost in repairs before they are replaced.

Concrete walks are sightly, everlasting and safe. They cost less to build and need no repainting nor painting.

A few weeks after the man came to the good minister boiling over with rage, having found his wife in a regular wizen, and said: "I thought you told me I was at the end of my troubles."

"So I did, friend, but I did not say which end," replied the Quaker.

Home Course in Health Culture

VIII.—Exercise in the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

FOR centuries the alchemist sought an elixir—a magic fluid that would restore exhausted vitality and perpetuate the activities of life. For many years physicians and chemists, successors of the "medicine man" and alchemist, have laboriously experimented with and concocted in the hope of at least finding some combination that would give health and increased longevity to mankind. Many valuable drugs and combinations of drugs have been discovered, but it is safe to say that the greatest achievements of medical science have come not through the use of drugs, but through the employment of natural remedies whose powers were not long neglected by the "medicine men" of the middle ages. It is true that diuretics, cathartics and the wonderful promise of other remedies of a similar class are the products of the laboratory, but these are truly nature's remedies, and have no relation with drug treatment. The remarkable fall in the death rate among people under thirty years of age in the past quarter century is almost wholly due to hygiene and the use of natural remedies in disease.

The power of physical training, fresh air and a little surgery to make over the lymphatic, half-defunct, mouth breathing child into a splendid and useful citizen is as wonderful in its way as the powers vainly sought by the alchemist and necromancers.

Troublesome Remedies Unpopular. It is unfortunate, however, that some of these remedial measures are not as easily prescribed or taken as pills and powders.

To advise a man to take more exercise is very much like telling him to take diet. It is a magic fluid that would restore exhausted vitality and perpetuate the activities of life. For many years physicians and chemists, successors of the "medicine man" and alchemist, have laboriously experimented with and concocted in the hope of at least finding some combination that would give health and increased longevity to mankind. Many valuable drugs and combinations of drugs have been discovered, but it is safe to say that the greatest achievements of medical science have come not through the use of drugs, but through the employment of natural remedies whose powers were not long neglected by the "medicine men" of the middle ages. It is true that diuretics, cathartics and the wonderful promise of other remedies of a similar class are the products of the laboratory, but these are truly nature's remedies, and have no relation with drug treatment. The remarkable fall in the death rate among people under thirty years of age in the past quarter century is almost wholly due to hygiene and the use of natural remedies in disease.

Best Time for Exercise. The best time for exercise is midway between meals, but few people can arrange to take it at such times. Before breakfast is a suitable time for most people, especially if the exercise is followed by a cold bath and brisk rubbing.

Some people cannot exercise before breakfast without feeling dizzy, fatigued, the exhaustion often lasting throughout the day. Before retiring is a safer time for such people unless they can arrange for forenoon or afternoon work.

Nervous subjects with an excitable circulation should not, as a rule, exercise before retiring. Exercise should never be taken just after a meal, and to exercise just prior to eating should be so severe as to cause great fatigue. In either case the digestive functions are impaired, and all benefits may be neutralized.

Benefits of Exercise. Exercise should be graded according to age and condition. When there is actual disease medical advice must be sought and followed or injudicious exercise may prove extremely harmful.

In prescribing exercise a good system is that of Dr. Dudley Sargent of Harvard. In this system the various movements are in grading, from the simplest to the most complex, and are given names to facilitate memorizing them.

The following is a brief outline of the several exercises:

First.—Adoration. Standing with feet together and hands raised before the forehead in a praying, bowed position, with arms and hands raised before the forehead and arms raised before the forehead and arms raised before the forehead.

Second.—Tree swaying. Stand with feet together and arms thrust straight upward, but not rigid. Sway the right part of the body from side to side.

Third.—Striking an anvil. Stand with feet twenty-four inches apart, arms straight out sideways, face turned to left. Keeping the arms rigidly straight, swing the right hand over the head and down on to the left arm with a slap. Swing the right arm downward and back to original position. Reverse the movement, face turned to right.

Fourth.—Swimming, breast stroke. Stand with feet twenty-four inches apart, left foot forward, weight resting on right leg, arms at right angles, held close to the side. Thrust arms forward, bend body forward and throw weight on left leg, bending at the knee. Sweep arms outward and backward to original position, imitating a swimming stroke.

Sixth.—Chicken wings. Stand with feet together and thumbs in armpits. Raise both elbows while raising left knee to the waist. Return to first position and repeat, raising opposite knee. Keep up the movements actively.

Seventh.—Signal station. Stand erect, with heels together, hands on hips. Thrust the right arm straight upward while lifting the left leg outward and upward, holding it in the air. Repeat the limbs and repeat on other side.

Eighth.—Tossing. Stand facing the feet, feet together, arms at right angles and close to sides. Bend forward, weight on right leg, with arms extended, and right arm extended, right leg in advance of right foot. Return briskly to first position as though pulling on car. Repeat, facing left.

Ninth.—Restoration. Stand with feet together, face downward, back of hands touching. Raise hands upward, separating as they pass the head. Then describe a circle downward and outward back to first position. Repeat. Begin to inhale deeply as the arms are raised, slowly exhaling as the arms descend.

These movements should be performed from twenty to thirty times at a time, and should be repeated every day, fatiguing. Many simple movements of a similar character will prove effective if regularly and systematically carried out.

Effects of Exercise. The circulation and respiration are chiefly affected during exercise and muscular work. There is an increased absorption of oxygen, an increased excretion of carbon dioxide and water. In other words, combustion proceeds more actively in the body, and more fuel, in the form of fat, starches or proteins, is required. All of which goes to show that, whatever man's mind or soul may be, his body is a sort of engine which can no more carry on its work without fuel than a locomotive without coal can drag a train of cars.

Mind and will power alone cannot run the human engine with fuel, tea and sops and food that is not fuel any more than the most skillful engineer can run a locomotive with fire in the boiler and a few shavings in the smokebox.

A NATIVE MUSICIAN.

Frank Blachford Ranks High Among Violin Soloists.

The question whether or not Canadian soloists encourage Canadian art in the form of music, for instance, is best answered by a study of those musical artists in the province who are making a name for themselves. More than one in fact, many times—Canadian papers have spoken their appreciation of such artists. Dr. A. S. Vogt, Frank Weisman, Dr. Albert Han, Donald Hohn of Ottawa, and Prof. Goulet of Montreal. There are many more of expression that brings them before a large section of the public. There are more doing a quiet but not less effective work, on a smaller scale, who contribute quite as vitally to the musical life of the community, not only in their own cities, but abroad.

Mr. Frank Blachford of Toronto is an excellent example of a young Canadian who by strong natural endowment, great perseverance and steadfast adherence to a conservative ideal in music has put himself well up in the front ranks of Canadian musicians. Mr. Blachford went to Germany some years ago, rather undecided whether to study violin or piano. He came back after three or four years in Leipzig a thorough expert in both instruments, but he chose violin and teaching. He is a type of man who might have done well at ordinary business. He is doing a much bigger work with the violin. As organizer of the Toronto String Quartet, he has been a pioneer in the work in Canada; as concertmaster of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra; as a soloist in the violin, as a violinist, as a composer—when he has time, Mr. Blachford is entitled to a full and complete recognition as a big worker.

Mr. Blachford is a big worker who knows what he wants and gets it in an artistic way. Puzzled the Printers. Archibald Blue, who is at the head of the Census Department at Ottawa, had an amusing experience with printers back in the days when he was in the service of the Ontario Government.

In a report concerning mines in Ontario, Mr. Blue used the word "mattie," which, while a perfectly proper and respectable word, is technical and not well known. The printers at the establishment where the Government printing was being done did not know the word.

When the proof got back to them they saw that the "mattie" was marked to be taken out. But although the word was the one generally used to mean "take out," they thought that Mr. Blue had meant to indicate that "mattie" was a broken or worn-down letter. So they put in a better looking "mattie." But the revised proof came back to them with the sign meaning to take out that letter, and the letter they had used instead of the poor one looked to be quite good, they let it stand.

Soon afterwards Mr. Blue went to the printing office. History doesn't say whether he went there on business or made a special trip to "kill" the offending letter, but at any rate he pointed out the letter in the proof to the foreman and said, "Please get me that 't'. I want to break it up."

The foreman did as requested. Returning to Mr. Blue he looked hard at the "mattie" letter and said, "That is a bad 't'. I've just had a good one put in."

How Revenue Grows. The national debt of Canada at the close of November stood at $327,794,422 according to the statement of the Finance Department.

There was an apparent decrease of $28,256 during the month, but the debt was larger than on November 30, 1909, by $4,789,950.

The total revenue for the eight months ending November 30 was $75,875,446, as compared with $64,626,660 during the same period of the last fiscal year.

Ordinary expenditure amounted to $42,826,422, a decrease of $4,032,377 while capital expenditure aggregated $10,123,541, a decrease of $1,228,926. The total revenue for November was $100,001,000, as against $97,748,923 in the same month last year. The expenditure on current account for the month totaled $64,630,737, an increase of $871,367 as compared with November, 1909, of $64,626,660, a decrease of $3,145,526, a decrease of $305,255, compared with the same month last year.

Sympathy. "All the world loves a lover." Somebody says it, because lovers make such delightful topics of themselves, but all any one needs is a couple of people making love in public scenes to arouse in other people pretty nearly all the known sentiments.

To a Western Ontario man who is at the age when he should be making the most of his life, a young lady's Cupid's slave, the sight of a pair of lovers making love is a sight to be avoided. "Tell it to her, old man," he says to a friend who is looking on. "Tell it to her, old man," he says to a friend who is looking on.

Life insurance statistics clearly show that individuals who live a life of ease and luxury have a higher death rate than those of average weight. This is because death rate is maintained around middle life and later.

CHILDREN'S STYLES.

Heavy Cluny Lace on Hats Is Smart and Pretty.

Following the lines of the fashions for their mothers and older sisters, the clothes for the young folks shown in Paris have new and pretty applications of bands on the short skirts of girls' dresses and coats, bejeweled waist lines and a tendency to greater simplicity in trimming.

Probably one of the newest features of the hats for the young people is the use of heavy cluny lace on the hats, coats and dresses. It is a charming lace combined with heavy or sheer quality, lines for dresses for all the year around wear and will take the place of embroidery in trimming silk or cloth coats.

As a garment for children's hats there is nothing quite so appropriate as cluny or fillet lace, which belongs to the same family of laces. It is heavy, substantial lace and yet is light in weight and young looking. Often a piece of cluny edging or insertion forms the entire border of an adorable poke bonnet, while the crown is a huge stiff appearing baker's shape in black velvet.

AMONG THE "PROPS."

Room Where Gathered Stage Goods Are Kept Is a Quizz Place.

The "property room" of a theatre is the old curiosity shop of the show world. "Props" are the articles used by a reporter was recently taken back of the scenes of the famous play in Toronto. The afternoon show was over—everybody home to prepare for the evening. The kitchen scene of a rural drama contains chairs, table, stove, a bucket of water, piece of soap, towel, cup-bowl and dishes, etc., etc.

A property room is where the "props" are kept. To make it even clearer, "props" are the articles used in making up a stage picture, with the exception of the scenery. For instance, the kitchen scene of a rural drama contains chairs, table, stove, a bucket of water, piece of soap, towel, cup-bowl and dishes, etc., etc.

All such articles are "properties" and are handled by the property man. In many companies the property man is a man of considerable experience, and is kept up, under the charge of a house employer who knows by instinct where the property man is to be found. It is the show requires them.

From a skull for Hamlet to a cotton-top for a modern comedy, nothing is supposed to puzzle "props."

In the property room of the Grand are accumulated the bric-a-brac and furniture of twenty-five years. Above it, little the department has picked up its wares, an urn this week, a certain piece the week before. The property man is a man of considerable experience, and is kept up, under the charge of a house employer who knows by instinct where the property man is to be found. It is the show requires them.

ON THE JOURNEY.

Any's Experience in an Upper Berth and What Followed.

By CICELY ALLEN.

"I am very sorry it cannot be arranged," said the young man, with a deprecating wave of his hand, "but—"

"All the latest popular novels! Last chance to get your reading matter! No books sold on train after it starts!" The newsboy bawled this in Amy Curran's ear, and she lost all the young man said except the words "can't climb those beastly steps."

Not that she cared. She was quite able to climb the little ladder to the upper berth. Her lip curled scornfully.

"Oh! it doesn't matter in the least, you know. It was the conductor's idea, I assure you. Only in the south, where I come from, men, as a rule, are more obliging."

She picked up her novel and proceeded to ignore McKean's presence. He looked at her placidly, then flung himself down the sleeper to the smoking compartment. "Well, I do think she's a bit hard!" He pulled out a paper and tried to forget the scene, but the eyes but recently lifted to meet his.

In the meantime the girl in section 7 stared wrathfully at the letter in her book, which fairly danced before her eyes. "A nice beginning for my trip! I never wanted to go to Colorado Springs and I don't think I shall better remain at Mr. Harbort than to let the Carriers inveigle me into coming west."

With this final reflection she commenced to read in earnest, but somehow her mind went back to the very disagreeable young man who had regarded the sleeping car conductor's request that he yield the lower berth to the young woman, whose Pullman ticket had been duplicated by a careless employee in an uptown office. She could not forget the real regret in his eyes nor the nervous, embarrassed way in which he had said that he had declined to climb the little ladder to her berth. It was most annoying, she argued, that she could not forget a certain fascination which his long, firm hand had held for her and the hair he had smoothed.

She could imagine that he had spent hours trying to brush out a certain tendency to crisp curls. She was very glad there was something that could defeat him, if it was nothing more than curls, and after deciding that she was more content.

She did not see him again until she entered the diner at dusk. The only place left for her was a single seat at a table marked for four. The three passengers already seated were men, talking business in rather loud tones. Amy hesitated. A figure at the table opposite rose suddenly. The very agreeable young man who had smoothed her hair to the upper berth was standing beside her.

"Take my place," he said eagerly. "And I will go over there with the men." He had been occupying a seat at one of the small tables, and a gray haired woman was sitting opposite him.

Any saw all this at a glance and with a surprised uprising of her eyebrows and a momentary hesitation accepted the seat. The young man had not yet been served, and she realized that the change had not embarrassed him in the least.

"Quite willing to do things that do not inconvenience him," she thought scornfully. The young man did not presume upon the reception of this courtesy. Directly after dinner he once more retired to the smoking compartment, and Amy early ordered the porter to make up her berth. Once tucked snugly away, she forgot her grievance. The steady clink-clink of the wheels was a singular lullaby to which she soon yielded.

It seemed as if she had not been asleep more than three minutes when she awoke to the most horrible noises that she had ever heard. What had happened? Had the train run into a circus or a jungle of wild beasts? No; the train was still moving. Its rumbling clink-clink could be heard at intervals between the awful sounds which now wassalled her ears. If it were not wild beasts, then maybe some one around her was dying.

This pretty, carefully reared, ever protected southern girl had never seen any one die, and in her ignorance of this and various other matters she was working herself up into a fine frenzy. A particularly deep and agonized roar was followed by a sound that crossed between a gasp and a sob. She could stand the suspense no longer. She pushed the tiny button and, carefully raising her eyes, she stuck out her head to meet the look of inquiry in the porter's black face. Up and down the car she gave a hasty glance. Apparently no one else realized the tragedy that was going on so close at hand, for no other curtains were swaying, no other heads were thrust out.

"Sandra you want, miss?"

"Why-why, don't you hear that dreadful noise?" she said. "I think some one in the berth next to me is dying."

In the dim light she could see the dark's teeth gleam from white in a grin that reached from ear to ear.

"It's just the gentleman in the lower berth, miss, snoring. I will wake him up. Soon as he rolls over he'll stop."

Any jerked in her head as if the porter had struck her. She could feel him switch aside the curtains before her. Two minutes later she was walled toward her, then the sound of a deep grunt that was decidedly masculine and silence.

Up in her berth Amy lay, still flushing hotly with mortification. She knew that porter would tell everybody on the train next morning. She would feel that she had been deceived. Then suddenly from the berth below the hated sound rose again. Evidently there was no respite from this snoring. Just as she could change cars. Then suddenly the man who was responsible for it. It was really a disease, she decided, and how was she to cure it?

The next morning she met him face to face in the dining car. Her cheeks were flooded with crimson. She knew by the quick light in his eyes that he had heard of her mistake, and undoubtedly every one on the car knew it by this time and would consider it a fine joke.

She ate her breakfast in a resentful humor. She felt reckless and miserable, and it may be true to tell the truth, which caused her to stay uncertainly as she crossed from the diner back to the sleeper. She reached out a hand to admit her finger and then he came to the vestibule. Suddenly it seemed to her as if a sharp, red-hot iron had been thrust into her finger tip and run up to her shoulder. She tried to draw away her hand as a child does from a hot stove, but something held it tight, and then she awoke to the truth. The train had been stopped. The porter had closed upon it again. She was held as in a vise, and her calls for assistance could not be heard. She tried to get up, but her unconscious figure into the vacant drawing room. The conductor came hurrying up, greatly perturbed over the accident which had happened. He turned to the porter.

"Hurry through the train and find out whether there is a physician on board."

The young man spoke sharply. "I am a physician, Porter. I'm sitting in the long, narrow black bag from my berth."

And so it happened when Amy woke up to find that the porter had been tampering with her berth. The drawing room was at her disposal by the anxious conductor, and the entire train force was on its knees before her. The upturned vestibule meant that some employee's head would fall into the basket.

DELFT EMBROIDERY.

Smart Effects For Use in Summer Cottages.

Delft embroidery is new and is most attractive in its cool daintiness of tone for the summer room. It is usually all worked in dull blue of several shades upon a sort of coarse linen or flannel so nearly white that it can scarcely be called cream.

All of these hues are faced with the lighter of the three shades of blue and drawn up with corresponding ribbon. It must be remembered that the choice of color is as important a factor

TO HOLD DARNING.

In this work as in the design if the darning product is to resemble delft ware, the two bags show each a different little Dutch figure, one of them knitting, the other merely a face and both of them done in a combination of stitches, including outline, solid, skeleton, cut-stitch and laid work.

They are used to their best advantage in the carrying out of each part of the design, as are also the several shades of blue.

Delft figures similar to these are carried out in a whole line of art needlework, including larger but for the family mending, laundry bags, bedroom hangings and couch cushions.

A prominent feature throughout the whole lot of this delft blue fancy work is the standing or seated figure of a woman knitting. She is characterized of her country—a third, another providing for her family by primitive means.

All of these figures are treated by that method known to the decorative artist, a method that outlines its most

A KNITTING BAG.

Impressive parts with a single darker line. In this case it is accomplished by outlining.

One of the bags is intended for darning, one for knitting, and like designs may be applied to all sizes of work-bags or to many pieces of linen for use in the bedrooms of summer cottages.

The Guest Towel.

One of the prettiest designs in bedroom towels seen for a long time is called the guest room towel. It is of soft damask, woven in a dainty scattered design of sweet peas, a deep border of the flowers appearing at the ends, which are beautiful.

The size is 20 by 38 inches and the price 35 cents each.

A novelty in bath towels is a bleached Turkish towel, with a red jacquard border that will not run in the washing, but will come from its tubing looking like new. It costs only 25 cents and measures 20 by 44 inches, a reasonable price.

The crossbar dimities and the self checked lawn are responsible for some of the daintiest looking pillow-shams designed especially for summer use.

A rather large checked lawn, decorated with water lilies above a scalloped border, is thirty-two inches square and costs 65 cents. The scarf, 18 by 34, is the same price.

A second design is a grouping of daisies and bowknots set on above a pretty acroll pattern edge buttonholed, material round design. This is thirty-two inches square and costs 50 cents. The scarf is the same price.

Another pretty idea is a pillowsham of fine damask woven in the wide border of sheer crossbar. Price 85 cents.

For the Tea Drinkers.

Those women who are fastidious in regard to their tea will be interested in a new pattern that seems to have reached perfection. It is simple and inside the pot there is a tea ball, its chain passing through the knob on the cover of the pot. This ball is filled with tea and is drawn up into a hollow in the cover.

Freshly boiled water is poured into the pot, and the steam arising from it makes the tea, after a few minutes the ball is lowered into the water, then raised when sufficient strength has been extracted—all this without lifting the lid of the pot.

THE TIBETAN BATH.

A Victim's Story of the Real Thing in Its Native Land.

WELL MAULED AND SCRAPED.

He Was Kneaded, Plucked, Turned Over and Walked Upon and Then Scrubbed as Though He Were a Kitchen Floor.

The tourist who wanders about Stamboul will from time to time come to dusty buildings of all sizes, which might be taken for mosques but that they seem to have no minarets and no minarets. From some place, such as the terrace of the mosque of Sultan Suleyman, where their roofs may be overlooked, it will be seen that the low domes are often of a peculiar salmon pink color and always covered with glass balustrades. These are the real Turkish baths.

Quite apart from the ceremonious wash before prayer, Islam, which considers cleanliness not so much next to godliness as a part of godliness itself, ordains a periodical scrub all over. And the Turk, unlike the sodden west, never sits in hot water, but prefers a hot room, a tap and a basin as a minimum and a shampooer and a flesh glove if he can afford such modern luxuries.

One enters, as in the west, into the cooling room, generally a high domed room with many galleries around, a room the slippers are again exchanged for wooden clogs, wherein the novice walks like Agat, delicately, in fear of a fall, till he learns to imitate the gait of the bath men by abandoning all attempts to walk and executing a fast shuffle.

One enters a room about the temperature of an English shampooing room, is a very secondary affair. One stays there for a little, still clothed in the primitive Turkish robe, reclining on a distant imitation of a bed, drinking coffee and smoking a cigarette, perhaps watching a couple of shampooers in the act of scrubbing a writhing client. The customer and the shampooer wear the same type of loin cloth, an elaborate check of red and yellow that may be seen every day in the streets on an apron worn by the Albanian sellers of chestnuts or sweetmeats.

It is that cigarette is finished once into the inner room, heavy with damp heat, the real bath. The attendant pulls off the shoulder towel and opens the door, a heavy wooden affair, kept shut by a counterweight, whose banging is not the least characteristic noise of the bath. Inside is a large square domed room, laurels bulleaves in the dome admit the light, which the whitewashed walls reflect, making a light and airy effect. On the great square slab in the middle they have placed a towel and a pillow, and here one lies, leaving the clogs on the floor.

Round the room, screened from one another by dwarf walls are a row of marble basins, and here may be seen all classes—such is the democracy of Islam—from the army officer to the day laborer, whose shaved head oddly suggests a toad. The poorer classes do not indulge in the luxury of massage. They come for a wash only, often bring their own soap for economy's sake. It is not uncommon to see two of them scrubbing one another by turns.

Presently, unbidden, the shampooer mounts the slab and squats beside the victim. Most of his work "consists in kneading the client's muscles, then the long, heavy strokes of an English masseur. But when the customer is turned on his face the masseur becomes more energetic. He plunges the skin on each side of the spine, walking up and down on the back and strenuously gathers up arms and legs into curious long breaking knots regardless of the grunts of the stiff jointed west. A dual super-Gordian knot and the clapping of his hands show that it is over.

If the customer is a woman he can collect limbs which seem to have been pulled clean off him, adjoins to one of the basins and is rubbed with a high grade of soap. Then the man brings a battered metal bowl "cold water, old bath." Is the Turkish proverb for "the old, old story." Then a towel and a latter wrap of "yif" (Mecca palm fiber, and scrubs conscientiously for some ten minutes, working with the freedom of a zealous housemaid on a floor, forgetting apparently that the object he is scrubbing is flesh and blood.

Finally he pours warm water from the bowl to wash away the last of the soap and, if the bath is a large and up to date one, conducts his well scrubbed victim to a cold shower.

Drying takes place in the outer room, sundry loin cloths and towels are wrapped about the body, a small towel makes a turban for the head and clean cloths are produced for the feet, which have been dried with great—sometimes inconveniently great—care.

The process is over, and the three or four Turks who seem always to be doing "high class" work in the bath are ready to wish one good health.

ERRORS IN MARRIAGE.

Fourteen Seen by Him and Fourteen Seen by Her.

BY THE HUSBAND.

To tell her how to run her club. To bank his money in her name. To expect her to like his female relatives. To forget to praise her. To expect her to be grown up. To expect to have the last word. To take her opinions too seriously. To forget that she will change her mind.

To let her open his letters. To borrow her umbrella. To get mad because his bed is not tucked in at the foot. To tell her how his mother used to cook. To hesitate to tell her where he is going and where he has been. To work for her so hard that he has no time to devote to her.

BY THE WIFE.

To ask a man where he is going when he goes out. To ask him where he has been when he comes back. To tell him what she would do if she were in his place. To tell him everything and thus reveal his limitations. To ask him to put on her rubbers. To allow his stock of handkerchiefs and socks to get low. To buy bargain neckties. To tell him that he is a good looking. To expect to have the last word. To let him know how old she is. To tell him that her mother says. To allow him to edit her letters. To economize at the expense of her personal appearance.

To expect him to like her best friend's husband—Life.

In His Customary Tangle.

Mr. Maklinster was trying to explain to the pastor why he seldom went to the prayer meeting.

"It isn't because I don't believe in it," he said, "but I think they are highly useful for those that need them, but there are some people, you know, that are just praying for. Now, I don't suppose Mr. Goodwin, that really does you any good—that is, of course, you're past that—I mean that you've got beyond—or rather—in your opinion, you see, you have to set good example, which is about all you can—for all people have their weaknesses, but you can reach them somehow—I'm referring to you, of course, for I presume that even you—what I mean is that there is a spark of good in everybody—and a little self-examination on the part of every clergyman will disclose a tendency to—to—how much do you think I ought to give to the missionary cause this year, Mr. Goodwin?"—Chicago Tribune.

According to Schedule.

Eugene Higgins in the smoking room of the Kropotkinian Cattle condemned the too hurried tours of Europe that some Americans make.

"Europe to give its best," said Mr. Higgins, "must be taken slowly. One in an Italian picture gallery I heard of a man shouldered woman ask another:

"Is this Florence or Venice?"

"What day's today?" the other asked in turn.

"Wednesday."

"Then it's Florence!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Oh, That's It!

"Your husband is crazy to go up in an aeroplane, isn't he?"

"Yes, and I have promised him that he may do so a year from now."

"Do you think aeroplanes will be so much improved in a year's time?"

"I don't know anything about that, but his life insurance policy forbids his going up in a balloon or an aeroplane within five years."—Houston Post.

As Unto Others.

"The story told in the London Letter," writes a correspondent, "about the man who wanted to change by law 'mas' into 'tids' in 'Christmas' was even funnier, as I heard it, for his name was not Mr. Bert 'Thomas' Masson-Masson, which on the 'physician heal thyself' principle became 'Sir Thotides Tides-Tides'."—London Times.

Change of Ideals.

"What is it?"

"In the days of chivalry men were tickled to death if they got a lady's glove, and now they are all broken up over a little change in the mites."—Baltimore American.

Puzzle-Guess the Woman.

This is the bread that a woman baked. This is the doctor who gave the pills that cured the illness. This was the man that ate the bread that wasn't baked by his mother.

New Employment For Women.

A new employment for women which is most profitable is the sales of entertaining invalids. A young woman student in one of the larger cities found that there was an opening for some one who could sit around with persons recovering from illness, and the demand was so great that all her spare time was occupied in this manner. Chess and checkers were much in demand with women as well as men. That must be used to know when to play a game and when not to, for the game must have all the appearance of a close contest.

THE FACED, HEADRESS WORN IN TIBET.

"Take off the picture and this headress worn by the upper class women of Tibet might adorn the pretty heads of America's upper tenfold. Indeed, it is not as out of the way of the hats of the day that are considered 'perfect' as you think."

And as for expense, it lies right up with the most exclusive winter models, the price being practically fifteen dollars.

This costly piece of Tibetan headgear is interwoven with the wearer's hair and is ornamented with many turquoise, coral and small pearls. The decorations can be easily removed. It is worn only by women who are pure. Tibetans have not married Nepalese. In other words, it is as 'chaste' as a George or Carlier French pleat.

American millinery artists please take notice of the "lines" and profit thereby when genius takes another eccentric chapeau flight.

Suit Case Polish.

Some persons are surprised when they go to pack their suit cases for a journey to find them shabby or spotted, the leather dry and cracked or covered with greenish mold. They have been stored away either too near furnaces and steam pipes or in damp cellars.

All leather goods, chair seats, book covers, traveling bags, etc., must have consideration if they are to retain a fresh, attractive appearance. Shoes are preserved by the dressing student in leather. Book covers of leather or calf which are beginning to grow dry and brittle should be rubbed with a very small quantity of vasoline. If merely shabby and spotted they should be rubbed with well beaten white of egg, as should chair seats and all other leather articles, with the exception of sole leather suit cases, which are best cleaned by using ordinary russet shoe polish.

AFTER THE CURE FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Toronto, Canada.—"I shall endeavor to describe to you how I felt before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I scarcely know what it was to be well. I had awful bearing-down pains and usually before my monthly periods I suffered terribly and had to go to bed. I was not able to walk across the floor the pain was so bad. I doctored for a long time, but the doctor's treatment did not do me any good. I gave up all hopes of ever being well again."

until one day my husband saw the Compound advertised in the paper. I decided to get out a bottle and I am thankful he did. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and I kept on taking it until now I am a different woman. It also helped me during maternity and childbirth. I can thoroughly recommend your Vegetable Compound to any woman who is afflicted with female troubles, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacement, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

ELECTION ADDRESSES.

British Annals Are Full of Striking Pronouncements.

At one time it was customary to address one's opinions in detail. The longest address of recent years was issued by a West Country candidate; it ran into more than 4,000 words. As a selector to this there the famous one issued to the electors of Birkhead by Sir Elliott Lees. It consisted of the single word, "Trotter," called from Pretoria, where he was serving with the Yeomanry.

An eloquent address was that issued by a candidate at Merthyr Tydfil ten years ago. It was said that the gentleman had his printer's card by mistake, being under the impression he was in the constituency which he had lost. He was, however, loved, and married; he told the electors: "Gowned children and abashed expert to master me in flesh, and the devil; made and lost, and made and explored; mined, disfigured, and lost; lent, lent, borrowed, bought, and sold."

For really weird election addresses one must go to the annals of the past. The longest address of recent years was issued by a West Country candidate; it ran into more than 4,000 words. As a selector to this there the famous one issued to the electors of Birkhead by Sir Elliott Lees. It consisted of the single word, "Trotter," called from Pretoria, where he was serving with the Yeomanry.

He began by asking the electors of his ward to "anoint their eyes with the spirit of the Lord, and wipe them clean with the napkin of righteousness." The address is too long to quote in full, but it is a masterpiece of every work to have a fixed wage of $15 per week, "with free travel." It is a masterpiece of every work to have a fixed wage of $15 per week, "with free travel."

"I want you to put me into power to send all school children on a tour round the world during the last four years of their school age at the nation's expense, to make them bright and intellectual men and women, to be guarded by our soldiers and sailors, under the charge of their teachers and the most eminent physicians in our land." He also proposed to put the whole British Empire in apple-ore, when "every man should smoke his pipe of contentment from taxation, with beer of purity, while listening to the 'orchestra' of the parish bands."

It was a Hibernian candidate who stated: "My posterity belonging to one of the most famous Irish families, and myself being a man of unassailable integrity, of clear intelligence, and of consummate will-power, with my utmost for our prehistoric town."

Students Cheer for Liberty.
The Khedive of Egypt was unpleasantly impressed recently by a demonstration which occurred at Tanis, 30 miles from Cairo, as he was en route there on his way home from Alexandria.

A number of students of the secondary school shouted, "Long live the constitution! Long live the constitutional system!" This indicated that they were only ready to cheer the rhedive when parliamentary rule is established there. The school became deafening, and signs of displeasure were noticed on the Khedive's face. The Khedive then departed for the school and an inquiry was opened. The executive committee of the school has in consequence expelled twelve of the students. It has been found that the students belong to the secret society, the aims of which are unknown. Before their expulsion the students paraded the streets shouting, "Down with the Governor. Death to him! Long live the constitution!" A number of hooligans joined them and several arrests were made, including that of a Nationalist lawyer. Much excitement prevails at Tanis.

An Editor's Credit Daughter.
Mrs. Violet Tweedale, the writer of many brilliant novels, is a woman of all works. She can paint a landscape and cook a dinner; she can write a book and run a business, and she can catch a sporting scene and embroider the finest designs; she is a brilliant pianist, and has the reputation of being one of the best political speakers of the day. As a girl she was a beauty, and now, in middle age, with her regular features, white hair, and commanding presence, is a striking figure. Mrs. Tweedale, who is the eldest daughter of the late Robert Chambers, editor of Chambers' Journal, lives in a delightful home in Aberdeen. Every hour of the day is assigned to one or other of her numerous interests. "I never know an idle moment, and I never know an unhappy one till, by some misadventure, I am forced to sit with idle hands," is a remark she has often made.

No Profit.
Rev. P. H. Ditchfield, the writer of so many excellent books on archaeology and old English customs, tells this good story of a Wiltshire farmer. An old squire was riding to the Bench one morning and met a farmer, and after exchanging greetings, observed, "So, John, I hear you are going to be married again. Yes, sir, next Tuesday." "And you have been married three times before, have you not?" "Yes, sir, this will be the fourth." "And you always did pretty well for yourself, John. Your wife has always had a bit of money, I think?" "Yes, sir, but what with bringing on 'em in and carrying on 'em out, there ain't no profit."

THE POSTMASTER JOINS THE ARMY

WHO ARE SHOUTING PRAISES FOR DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS IN THE WEST.

A Neighbor Advised him to 'Take them for his Rheumatism and Gravel.' They Cured Him.

West Graveling, Sask. (Special).—Alexander McCarter, the postmaster here, has joined the great western army that has for its watchword, "When ailing, use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and like all others he has tried, and sufficient reasons, he was laid up with Rheumatism and Gravel." Mr. McCarter states, "and was also troubled with my bladder. I was so bad I could not do school work. A neighbor, a man who had been troubled the same way, and advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did so, and in two boxes, and using them according to directions, was soon able to go to work."

I did not know that a neighbor who had been troubled the same way who advised the postmaster to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. He also had been cured by them. This is why he recommended them.

With Kidney Disease in any form—Backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gravel, Dropsy, Headache, or Bright's Disease, ask your neighbors. You'll soon find one who has been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Diseases of the Skin

Often appear with sudden changes of temperature. Eczema and Salt Rheum are cured by

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

Cold, damp weather brings out eczema and salt rheum. Many who are subject to these ailments do not suffer except during the changeable weather of fall and spring. The annoying itching and the disfiguring blotches on the skin make this trouble almost unbearable to those who do not get relief from something, healing the influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It can be almost as soon as the ointment is applied. Gradually the irritation disappears, the sores are relieved, and the skin is left soft, smooth and natural.

There is always danger of eczema spreading on the face. For this reason the use of the ointment should be regular and persistent until the cure is complete and complete. Mrs. John J. Delory, Linwood, Antigonish county, N. S., writes—"I had salt rheum on one hand, and could not get it better. The ointment was most distressing at times. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me. I am glad to recommend it to every sufferer."

In every home there is a demand for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is particularly useful where there are children. Chafing and skin irritation are relieved at once. The Jewish Chronic are readily healed. Baby eczema and all forms of poisoned or irritated skin are cured by the use of the ointment. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

SEA COAST OF BOHEMIA.

Humorous Errors in Geography of the Older Writers.

In a Shakespeare-Bacon controversy this old error always turns up. It is held for some years. The "Winter's Tale" could make no defence. Dr. Thomas is not forgotten by careful students; his "Notions on Shakespeare" contained the germ of various discoveries which have been made out in later times. He had stated positively that Bohemia had a seacoast once. Swarming from Mount Thabor, the Hussites conquered Pomerania and the ports of Stettin and Rostock, which he held for some years. Further, he asserted that Speed's map represents them as still in possession, though published in 1622, after his death. It was certainly known many years before, and Shakespeare might have seen it. I never felt the curiosity to look up this reference myself, but some of the gentlemen who are so deeply interested in the matter ought to do so.

At any rate, blunders as grotesque have been committed by persons infinitely more responsible than an actor-dramatist. Perhaps the description of Bombay by the great Lord Clarendon is not a pleasing example. When urging the advantages of a marriage between Charles II. and Catherine of Braganza, once the Privy Council, he wrote that the alliance "proposed to give the English nation a two-fold advantage, Brazil (sic) in the East Indies."

And forever to annex to the crown of England the Island of Bombay, with the towns and castles thereon, which are within a very little distance of Brazil, the great Island of Bombay, which was formerly a Portuguese possession, and which I have seen nothing wrong, for when Francis Gwyn, who inherited the Clarendon manuscript, published them, some fifty years later, he included this document, without any comment of his own, and a perpetual lease of the island for $50 yearly.

Among the archives at Simancas is a wonderful pamphlet from some important personage recommending Waterford as a spot where the soldiers of the Armada might disembark to conquer the English. Among other advantages it was "only twelve miles from London." Philip II. was not a geographer, but he was a statesman, and he wrote on the margin, "Waterford twelve miles from London. Make inquiry."

Charles II. had the same idea about the geography of his own empire. It is reported, on excellent authority, that when the French took Mons, the great town and fortress of Flanders, he congratulated the Marquis of Namur, the French governor of the English territory at the date.

COUNCIL MEETING

Councillors Hold First Meeting for the Year—All Present—Busy Session

T. FRAYER ELECTED CHAIRMAN
W. A. Beebe Is Secretary-Treasurer—Councillor Lyon Introduces Incorporation

The first meeting of the newly elected Blairmore councillors took place in W. A. Beebe's office on Friday evening last.

The meeting opened at 8 p.m. Councillors T. Frayer, L. Dutil and H. E. Lyon were present. The first stroke of business was the appointment of a chairman when councillor Lyon moved and councillor Dutil seconded that councillor Frayer be appointed chairman, this was carried and councillor Frayer then took the chair. The appointment of a secretary-treasurer was then called for, when W. A. Beebe was re-elected to that office, which position he is to fill until the end of the present council or until we are incorporated.

Councillor Dutil moved and councillor Lyon seconded that the secretary-treasurer be instructed to write the secretary of Blairmore Lodge, No. 68, I. O. O. F., to ascertain if they would rent their hall to the Blairmore council for one night a week—carried.

The night on which to hold the regular monthly meeting was then discussed. It was moved by councillor Lyon and seconded by councillor Dutil, that the regular night of meeting be on the second Monday in each month and said meetings to commence at 8 p.m.—carried.

The committees were appointed with the following result: Councillor Lyon is a committee of one to look after chimneys and fires; councillor Dutil is sanitary inspector, and chairman Frayer is inspector of roads and bridges.

Councillor Dutil moved that the secretary-treasurer write Messrs. P. McLaren, Mutz, Scott and West Canadian Collieries to know if they would sell to the village a piece of land three acres or more for village purposes. Councillor Lyon seconded this and it was carried.

Councillor Lyon said that as he was a new councillor and therefore not having seen copy of contract, plans and correspondence in connection with the water works, he would ask the chairman to place same on the table so that he would be able to become fairly acquainted with the matter. This was done.

It was moved by councillor Lyon and seconded by councillor Dutil, that the council advertise in the BLAIRMORE ENTERPRISE for prices on land suitable on which to erect a fire hall. Prices, size and where located to be presented at the next regular night of meeting.—Carried.

A bill for $77.50, was received from Dr. D. C. McKenzie for hospital expenses on George Laidlaw, and was ordered paid.

The next matter of business was in reference to incorporation. Incorporation is evi-

Miner Killed at Burmis

Burmis was the scene of a fatal accident on Friday last when Edwin Smith aged 26 years, met his death at 3:30 p.m. by a falling rock. Smith was working in the Davenport Coal Company's mine there when a large fall of rock suddenly crushed him to death. He was a single man and was engaged by that company about seven months ago. He was buried on Wednesday. A coroner's inquest will be held on Friday.

Engineer Killed

George Kosby, of Calgary, engineer on the C. P. R., was killed in a railway accident near Granum on Monday morning last. Engineer Kosby was running an engine from Macleod to Calgary when it was derailed between Macleod and Granum and he was crushed under it as it turned over.

The deceased had been in the employ of the C. P. R. for twenty-four years. He was well known throughout this district and had many friends in this town.

C. P. R. Trains Delayed

High winds which have drifted the snow into huge banks delayed trains on this line on Sunday and Monday. The line was practically clear West of here, and along The Pass ideal weather with a very moderate wind prevailed. But the distressing tale comes from Macleod where the gale lifted the cuts and held up all the trains for thirty hours. There was no west-bound train here on Monday and they were four hours behind in reaching this place on Tuesday.

Tales of war also come from Saskatchewan and Manitoba where trains were snow bound and railroad traffic paralyzed for many hours. Several snow plows which went out to negotiate with the snow drifts on the prairies became derailed and passengers were threatened with being snowed under.

dently a popular subject for when it was mentioned the large number of spectators, which crowded the council chamber, put a look of appreciation and hoped that this matter which the BLAIRMORE ENTERPRISE has been long agitating for, would be soon realized. It was moved by councillor Lyon, by whom this subject was introduced, and seconded by councillor Dutil, that the secretary be instructed to post up notices immediately informing the public of a meeting to be held in the Mercantile hall on Monday, February 13, 1911, when it is hoped that the matter of incorporation will be thoroughly discussed.

At the close, chairman Frayer asked if anyone in the audience had anything to say or had any questions to ask about last year's work or about work now under contemplation. Everyone seemed to be satisfied as there was no reply and all beamed with a smile of approval.

INCORPORATE BLAIRMORE

Is the Sincere Request of a Large Number of Its Ratepayers.

INCORPORATION IS LIVE TOPIC

The Advantages of Same Are Many—Should Have Been Done Long Ago

Incorporation is becoming a live topic around Blairmore and if present indications are to be considered the majority in favor of it will be very large when voting day comes.

This is a matter which the ENTERPRISE has been advocating during the past three or four months and it is indeed gratifying to us to know that it is being looked upon very favorably by the ratepayers of this place and no right thinking citizen seems to be opposed now to erecting Blairmore into a town municipality.

Many questions have been asked us on the street regarding how to go about incorporating and what advantage it would be to Blairmore to have same.

We might state for those who may not know, that it is necessary for a special meeting of the ratepayers to be called to have the census of the village taken and if there be found to be over 400 persons living within its limits steps may be taken towards its incorporation as a town.

The resolution applying for incorporation should state exactly the proposed limits and area to be included in the town. After this resolution has been approved of by the meeting, notices, stating the intention of the over-seer to apply to the Lieutenant Governor to have the village erected into a town municipality and giving the lands which are to be included within its limits, will have to be published.

The expenses connected with this work need not exceed fifty dollars which would allow for hall rent for public meetings and publishing of notices in local paper and the Alberta Gazette.

The advantages to be derived from incorporation are many. Our borrowing powers will be such as to allow us to secure money with which to make many much-needed civic improvements. The money taken in at the police court (while it may not be large) will be sufficient to pay the salary of our policeman who would besides being chief of police be able to act as secretary-treasurer, sanitary inspector, assessor, the same as they are doing at Coleman. At present the money taken at the police court goes to the provincial government. A public meeting will soon be held to decide this matter when it is hoped that all who desire to see this place move out of its old rut and make big progressive strides, will attend.

P. Burns says that on account of the hard winter in the West, the price of beef will make a material advance in the near future. Pork and mutton will also move up the scale.

Additional Blairmore

W. H. Chappell and wife, of Bellevue, are visiting this week end in Blairmore.

The hockey match which was to have taken place here last night, had to be referred to Frank owing to the storm. Blairmore picked up a bunch of "scrubs" from the street to fill places in the team. The game resulted in a score of 5-1 in favor of Coleman.
